

September 1, 2020

CSLB #20-20

CSLB Releases Latest List of Revoked Licenses

SACRAMENTO – The Contractors State License Board (CSLB) is responsible for regulating California’s construction industry. That responsibility includes testing and licensing California’s almost 282,200 (229,077 active, 53,113 inactive) contractors. It also includes enforcement of California Construction Law. For offenses of the law, CSLB has the authority to discipline a licensee. The most serious offenses may result in the revocation of a license.

Towards the middle of each month, CSLB posts a list of licenses revoked during the previous month. The most recent posting is for July 2020:

<https://www.cslb.ca.gov/Resources/Reports/Revoked/Revoked202007.pdf>

The website also includes lists of revoked licenses all the way back to 2007.

Some causes for license revocation include, but not limited to, acting out of class, causing willful and fraudulent harm to another individual, taking advantage of elderly consumers, and conspiring with an unlicensed individual to evade contracting law.

A revoked license will not be reinstated or reissued for one to five years from the effective day of a revocation. The licensee also must show that he or she has complied with all provisions of the decision and settled any loss caused by the act or omission that resulted in the license revocation. He or she must also file a disciplinary bond in an amount set by the Registrar.

Other Resources

- What Constitutes a Revoked License and Rules for Revocation
- Process to Reinstate a License
- Revoked Licenses by Year \(2007-2020\)
- 2020 Contractor Law and Reference Guide

###